Park Street Library @ the Lyric Grand Opening

» A grand opening celebration was held October 2nd for the new Park Street Library at the Lyric and was well-attended by the community at large, with a total of 494 visits for the day! The event had different elements that shined a light on the diverse cultures of the Frog Hollow neighborhood. Festivities for the day started at a local community open space known as the Artbox, where local artists Yesenia Garcia, Lindaluz, and Mercury guided participants in mask making and poster making for a parade. The parade was led by the Hartford Hot who played a popular Latin song named “Despacitio” from the Artbox to the new library location. Park Street was in full celebration as people lined the sidewalks to see the parade, clap, and cheer. Before entering the building, a few words were shared by HPL President and CEO Bridget Quinn; HPL Board Chair Greg Davis; HPL Customer Experience Officer Leticia Cotto; HPL Board Member Ana Alfaro; State Representative Minnie Gonzalez; Chair of the Park Legacy Campaign Marilda Gandara; Mayor Luke Bronin; former Hartford Mayor Pedro Segarra, and Park Street Library Manager Graciela Rivera. Tears of joy were shed by those bearing witness to this moment in history. A block party was held for the remainder of the day, and the streets were closed from the corners of Broad, Park, and Ward Streets. The crowd was free to explore the building, check-out books and dvds, glanced at the Frog Hollow exhibit on the 2nd floor, enjoyed the food trucks and musical performances. It was truly a community wide effort to put forth this event.

Access to Information and Services that Contribute to Well-Being

» The Downtown Library continued to be open to the public six days a week for computer use and services by appointment. HPL re-opened the renovated Children’s Department in July as well as the Albany and Dwight libraries two days a week. This quarter HPL saw:
  - 50,265 visits
  - 138 municipal IDs created
  - 33,236 items checked out
  - 8,479 computer sessions and 7,449 wifi sessions
  - 6,257 reference questions answered

» As of July, HPL’s Board of Directors unanimously approved the elimination of fines for all HPL cardholders. HPL will no longer charge fines for overdue materials and any fines currently on the cardholders’ accounts were deleted. In 2018, HPL went fine free for children and young adults. This year’s unanimous vote extends fine free to adult card holders. “I applaud our Board of Directors for their vision. Universal fine free aligns with our mission, improves customer relations, removes barriers to additional library resources and reaffirms our commitment to the community and our dedication to service,” said Bridget E. Quinn, HPL President and CEO. In celebration of going fine free, anyone who checked out an item in July using their HPL card was entered to win one of seven Kindle Fires.

» On July 12th, the Barbour Library collaborated with Abigail Moore from Foot Wear With Care, Police Officer Barrett, and Hartford Healthcare to give COVID vaccine shots and free sneakers to 20 people experiencing homelessness.

» HPL partnered with the Mayor’s office to help Hartford residents file for the Child Tax Credit. Knowing that close to 30% of Hartford residents do not have broadband internet at home, HPL stepped up to help people access the online tool at the library. Staff were trained to know how to determine if someone is eligible to apply, and what kinds of questions are asked on the form. A laptop was made accessible at the service desk so staff could walk customers through the form, step by step, in a secure and private manner. While the tool is available in English and Spanish, Spanish-speaking staff are available to help with any questions.

Summer Learning

HAVE A SUMMER ADVENTURE WITH HPL: READING COLORS YOUR WORLD

» This year, the Programming Department worked alongside Public Services staff and Youth and Family Services to create a Summer Learning program for adults parallel to the Youth Summer Learning program. Hartford Public Library’s Summer Adventure for 2021, “What Colors Your World?”, featured many learning opportunities for all ages around art and creativity. Adult summer adventure participants used a customized Hartford Prints-created adult coloring page featuring many beloved Hartford scenes to track their summer learning progress. 76 adults participated in Summer Adventure by completing activities and coloring in the coloring page.

» The adult summer adventure also offered many art workshops hosted by local artists and musicians. In July, HPL hosted a “Paint Your Own Picasso Self-Portrait” workshop. There was a 300% increase in participation in this year’s Summer Learning Adventure, a true Boundless collaboration! We could not have been more excited to see our vision of having one program for the two organizations come to fruition with these spectacular results!
• A reimagined program delivery was done through internal and Boundless committee work which began in January.
• 1,029 participants system wide, all branches were represented in registrations.
• Approximately 900 HPS students participated in some way.
• 550 Digital Learning Log responses system wide which included 20 minutes of reading per day as well as other interactive activities including programs at HPL and STEM activities at the Library and at homes.

Supportive Community for Child and Adult Learning

• Dwight Library partnered with the Parkville Senior Center to provide programming every Tuesday. A wide variety of programs were offered, including Bingo. Activities included creating Cancer Awareness keychains and writing an acrostic poem.
• The Downtown Children’s Room, as well the Branch Libraries, hosted a rich array of indoor and outdoor summer programs with music, hip-hop dance workshops, hula hoop, double dutch, RAPoetry, jewelry making, and henna tattoos.
• Boundless Librarian Alexa Esposito and Outreach Librarian Katherine Trouern-Trend were co-coordinators of the Summer Camp program. They prepared program kits and books for 25 summer camps, delivered books and program kits to 19 camps, scheduled summer camp participation in 35 library programs (in-person and live-virtual) across the library system, scheduled 19 outreach visits for youth librarians to school-based summer camps serving 512 students. Over 2,000 books were distributed to campers to help stem summer slide and build at home libraries.

Teen Services

• During the month of July, HPL debuted “Robot Recess” to highlight our new STEM Lab on the Go kits available for check out. A group of 40 high school students attended as part of their camp and were amazed to discover that the featured kits were available for check-out! Popular kits included Botzees, Dash Robot and Ozobots.
• The Teen Intern program through ReadyCT provided eight interns to YOUmedia for July and August. Five of the interns were recent immigrants to the US and English language learners. They worked with YOUmedia mentors to learn music production, build 3D models, and study photography.
• The Boundless Enrichment program at Hartford High ran four programs during the July to September quarter, fulfilling four different program categories: English Club (Academics), Soccer Study Hall (Enrichment), Anime Club (Recreation), and the ReadyCT Internship Program (Workforce Development).
HPL’s Public Programming Department offered a total of 23 in-person programs with a total attendance of 484 attendees.

HARTFORD CHANGEMAKERS

» HPL hosted the second annual Hartford Changemakers summer program to celebrate Hartford BIPOC historical changemakers led by local artists. The Hartford History Center, Public Programming Department, Production and Programming Coordinator, and Branch locations collaborated this year to host the following art workshops across the City of Hartford in HPL Branch neighborhoods.

- “Dancing Outside” with Chantal Edwards at Dwight Branch
- “Documentary Photography” at Albany Branch
- “Storytelling - The Drama and Drums of Civil Justice” at Downtown Branch
- “Urban Gardening & Family Recipes” with Jocelyn Cerda at Barbour Street community garden
- “Mural for Black Firefighters” with Lindaluz Carrillo and Kayla Farrell at the Phoenix Society Building
- “Mask Making” with Yesenia Garcia at Artbox
- “Outdoor Sculpture Making” with Mercury at Artbox

» The two workshops at the Artbox, a vacant lot near the old Park Branch, created artwork that would later be used in the Grand Opening of the Park Street Library @ The Lyric.

» The mural workshop artists partnered with The Phoenix Society, an organization of retired and active Black firefighters of the Hartford Fire Department, to research and paint an homage to Hartford’s first African American Firefighter William Henry Jacklyn.

GET ON UP! SUMMER CONCERT SERIES

» Funded by the Evelyn Preston Memorial Fund, the Get on Up! outdoor summer music series was a grant co-written with HPL branch managers. The goal was to get Hartford residents out of the house and out on the street for these high-energy live music performances outside each of HPL’s branch locations.

» Dancer Savana Jones performed throughout the series and encouraged attendees of all ages to dance and have fun.

HARTFORD BOOK FESTIVAL

» Hartford’s L.I.T. (Literary Integrated Trailblazers), a group of Black writers, poets, authors, and entrepreneurs in the Hartford region, co-hosted the 3rd annual Hartford Book Festival. After a completely virtual event in 2020, this festival was a hybrid event of in person and virtual programming.

» The festival featured over 32 local authors and vendors, writing and poetry workshops, a puppet show from artist Iyabo Mandingo, and performance by the powerful spoken word group When Women Speak.

COMMUNICO

» HPL transitioned to a new room reservation and events calendar system, Communico, which went live to the public on September 1st. The system features a more attractive and user-friendly events calendar for the entire library system, as well as a more comprehensive room reservation system.

LIBRARY ON WHEELS / OUTREACH

» The outreach team made 126 outreach site visits and provided services to 1,493 individuals. Two new Outreach Assistants joined the outreach team at the end of August, allowing the team to attend more outreach opportunities in Fall 2021. In July and August, the outreach team hosted a Summer Youth Employment Program intern out of the Center for Latino Progress. The intern assisted with various outreach events and office tasks.

» The outreach team maintained a busy weekly schedule of visiting farmers’ markets, Foodshare Mobile stops, and many summer special events including Books on Pratt, the Greater Hartford Jazz Festival and back-to-school events.

» In collaboration with HPL’s Youth Services Outreach Librarian, the LOW continued coordinating book circulation delivery routes to Early Childhood Centers throughout Hartford for a total circulation of 1,774 books during this quarter.

THE AMISTAD JOURNEY TO FREEDOM

» Discovering Amistad was an educational organization committed to telling the story of the Amistad Uprising of 1839, embarked on “The Amistad Journey to Freedom” where a replica of the Amistad sailed up the Connecticut River to Hartford as powerful reminder of the Amistad story and its relevance to racial and social justice today. Throughout the month of September, Discovering Amistad provided educational offerings for 5 different school districts and almost 2,000 people from all over the state came to see the ship.

» The LOW participated in the Amistad Family Day by giving away books for all ages, including over 100 books on the history of the Amistad or on anti-racism.

PROGRAM PRODUCTION & ENGAGEMENT (PP&E)

» The Program Production & Engagement Coordinator supported the Public Programming Department, as well as the Albany, Dwight, Barbour, and Park Street libraries through media production, in the forms of photography, videography, and streaming. PP&E individually and collaboratively offered a two in-person program series that resulted in a total of 40 programs; a total of 94 participants were served through said programs. Additionally, PP&E helped to lead the development of HPL’s coming open-source music streaming platform. PP&E focused on 2 outreach initiatives during this quarter.

Production

VOICES OF FROG HOLLOW

» Program Production & Engagement collaborated with the Manager of the Park Street Library on the conceptualization and execution of a summer project entitled, Voices of Frog Hollow. This was a video production project, during which the two partners participated in grassroots, in-person outreach within the Frog Hollow/Park Street neighborhood. They walked around capturing footage and collecting the stories of local business owners and other neighbors on video; there were 7 participants during this quarter. PP&E used that footage to produce Voices of Frog Hollow, the documentary film would later have its first screening at the grand opening of Park Street Library @ The Lyric, and premier on the HPATV network.

BTS: THOUGHTS ARE THINGS

» The Program Production & Engagement Coordinator also served as role of a Production Assistant for the making of the film, BTS: Thoughts Are Things. This film was written and directed by Christopher T. Brown. PP&E supported the project with equipment runs, shooting b-roll and behind-the-scenes action, and by helping the principal cinematographers set lighting for sets.

Partnerships

RABBLE/MUSICAT

» PP&E’s premier focus for this quarter was helping to lead the development and expansion of partnerships with other community organizations, for the purpose of supporting Hartford-based artists, and gig-workers through increased access to paid opportunities and resources. PP&E worked to initiate a partnership with Rabble, who will be developing and hosting HPL’s new open-source music streaming platform through their Musicat program. This streaming platform will contain a digital library of music from Hartford-based artists, that will be available for listening to anyone in the world with access to the internet; the music will also be available as downloadable files, for anyone who is a HPL library card-holder. In order for customers to enjoy this part of Hartford’s culture through Musicat, Hartford artists will submit their music to a community-jury of curators, who will collectively choose which albums are added to the collection. Once albums are selected, music will be streamed for HPL customers to enjoy. This is a wonderful opportunity for HPL, Hartford artists, and anyone looking to enjoy more of what makes Hartford a great place to be. This partnership with Rabble has already opened doors to new community partnerships that will yield further access to opportunities and resources for Hartford people.

» In addition to contributing to the development of new partnerships, the Program Production & Engagement coordinator also contributed to the annual report of a current partner, The Village for Children & Families, by way of a filmed interview that can be found on their website, amongst other places.

Program Support

HPL TOWN HALL

» Program Production & Engagement also supported HPL’s initiative of encouraging and creating space for increased community input, by filming and streaming the hybrid town hall events hosted by HPL this past summer. Participants were able to engage in the proceedings and offer their perspective on the needs and goals of HPL customers.

HARTFORD CHANGE MAKERS

» Hartford Public Library kicked off its second annual Hartford Changemakers Program series, Program Production & Engagement made it a point to document the action and engagement of the various programs that were led by Hartford artists and professionals of various disciplines. Photos and videos of participants were captured as they learned how to take community-garden-grown veggies and herbs, and make magic in HPL’s program kitchen, in ways that tied back to various traditions and origins of many cultures that are represented in Hartford today. Another program that was covered with photo and video a great deal included, the exciting and action-packed Dance and Movement series hosted at the Dwight Library, by dancer Chantal Edwards-Matthews.

» Interviews were carried out in the spring and summer of 2021 for the Hartford History Center. The interviews were conducted via Zoom and recorded. Interviewers were Lauren Schafer, a student in the University of Connecticut’s EncoreConnecticut Program, and David Barrett, former editor and vice president of The Courant who serves on Hartford Public Library’s Board of Directors.

» From July 12 to August 20, the Hartford History Center worked with the Programming department to deliver a systemwide summer program called Hartford Changemakers for a second summer in a row. The program was funded by the Ensworth Charitable Foundation. This year, we were able to host in-person intergenerational, mostly outdoor programs at Albany and Dwight libraries, a community space called the Art Box on Park Street, community gardens across the city starting on Barbour Street, at the Phoenix Society of Hartford on Windsor Street, and downtown. Workshops pulled 10-20 participants each to engage in dance, storytelling, mural making, mask and sculpture making, documentary photography, and community gardening and healthy cultural cooking based on family recipes. All workshops were led by Hartford artists and community organizers in their own right, encouraging participants to use art forms as a way to participate in community building and creatively making Hartford a home they can celebrate. A special highlight from the program is the mural that was co-created and painted outside of the historic Phoenix Society of Hartford celebrating the history of Black firefighters in the city of Hartford. The mural celebration took place on September 25. This project was made possible by our partnership with HPL board member and former fire captain, Steve Harris.

» From August 19 – October 21, the Hartford Artisans Weaving Center exhibited their latest show called, “Perspectives on Color,” which showcased a range of colors, patterns, textures. The show was exhibited in the 3rd floor glass cases of the Downtown Library. The featured artisans are Hartford area seniors and people of all ages who are blind or visually impaired. On September 9, we hosted a reception for the exhibit and on September 21 we had a live weaving demonstration on the main floor next to the public computers, also celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month with two Latina weavers: Ana and Carmen.

Stronger relationships among community organizations

» Hartford History Center, in a longstanding partnership with Capital Community College, continued its work on the Hartford Heritage Project this fall. Capital Community College received a National Endowment for the Humanities grant this quarter to continue this popular program that shares the history, culture, and artistic life of Connecticut’s capital city with students through place-based courses and special programming with partner organizations.
Deeper understanding of self and connection to community by learning Hartford history

» July 2021 saw the re-opening of the upper floors of the library to the public. Since July 2020, the Hartford History Center had been operating on a by appointment only status. It has been wonderful to have walk-ins and classes of students again and the serendipity that comes with the organic assemblage of people. Additionally, we have returned to putting together small exhibits of materials from the HHC collections for the public. Here are some of the highlights:

• To celebrate the re-opening of the refurbished Children’s Department, a small exhibit of books, dolls and photographs from the Caroline Hewins Collection was installed in one of the cases in the Children’s Department. To further welcome children back to the third floor, photographs from the HPL Archive of children using the library over the 20th Century were exhibited in the HHC cases.

• To celebrate Constitution Day and the contributions made by immigrants and Hartford’s efforts to assist new arrivals, the HHC worked with The American Place and provided texts, pamphlets and photographs from the collection for both an on-line exhibit and a physical exhibit. Some of the documents were “The Creed of Americanization” and the “Hartford Handbook for New Citizens...and Old” both from 1919. As well as the program from “The Mayor’s All Americans Festival” from 1972.

• Photographs from the Hartford Times Photo Morgue were featured in an exhibit celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month. Books, pamphlets and poetry from the collection were also highlighted in honor of Indigenous Peoples’ Day. The exhibited materials range in date from 1851 – 2013.

» Fall classes at the Hartford History Center kicked off in September with in-person workshops coming back. We hosted high schoolers from the CREC Impact Academy on September 9 and September 21, which exposed mostly Hartford based students to archival materials for the first time. We also hosted a first year UCONN seminar on September 23, which looked more specifically at materials pertaining to Hartford-based activists in the face of many urban challenges across the neighborhoods. On September 24, a UConn social work graduate class came to review a wide range of materials on social work, mental health, juvenile delinquency and the prison system, public welfare, and social service agencies.

» The HHC continued to host several of our “regulars” but also assisted a good number of new researchers. Many were here to do family genealogy or to investigate the history of their property. We also had a map maker here who is assisting in a project to redefine the boundaries of the Ancient Burying ground for the Ancient Burying Ground Society, someone looking for photographs of 1960 Hartford to illustrate a novel that he is writing, a graduate student studying the origins of the Old North Cemetery in West Hartford, and a Hartford resident who grew up in Bellevue Square who looked through the Hartford Housing Authority Photograph Collection and found photographs of himself and his cousins when they were very young.

» Each week the Hartford History Center posts a Throwback Thursday (#tbt) photo to Instagram. The most popular photo in the past quarter was a historical view of Main Street. One of the most exciting photos for staff was of a teacher’s aide at Kennelly School working with a young student. The teacher’s aide, Mary Ellen Flynn, passed away a few days after we posted the photo. We were contacted by her family, who were excited to see this never before published photo. Upon posting, we also learned that the student, Theona “Sherri” Davis-Googe, is currently the Chief Operating Officer for Hartford Public Schools. Photos may be viewed without logging in, https://www.instagram.com/hartfordhistory/
On September 25 and 26, HHC team member Jasmin Agosto spent time with Glaisma Perez-Silva in Portland, ME to complete her oral history interview on her work as a bilingual educator in special education and the arts in Hartford, recruited from Puerto Rico by the Hartford Public Schools in 1988 and through the 1990s. Materials pertaining to her work in Hartford were also collected and will become part of the Hartford History Center’s archive.

In August, the updated Hartford City Parks finding aid was published (http://hhc2.hplct.org/repositories/2/resources/79), and researchers have started using the newly cataloged material.

Work continues on all our physical and digital collections, including material captured from the ribbon cutting and grand opening of the Park Street Library @ the Lyric, which is stored on our page with the Internet Archive (https://archive-it.org/home/hplct).

Communications

Russell Blair joined HPL as communications manager in late August, coming to the library from The Hartford Courant, where he spent the past nine years as a digital producer, reporter and editor.

Communications’ biggest highlight of the quarter was marketing and promotion around the opening of the new Park Street Library @ the Lyric, collaborating closely with staff at the branch. We worked with our partners in Spanish language media to place advertising and reports in Identidad Latina, Hartford News and other outlets. We also received coverage from The Courant, WNPR and on television news (in English and Spanish).

Work on the 2021 HPL annual report was also wrapped up this quarter. It has been uploaded to the library website and 1,000-plus copies were mailed to homes and businesses.

We continue to gain followers across all three of our social media platforms (Facebook, Twitter and Instagram) with the strongest growth on Instagram, with a more than 50% year over year increase in followers. There has been a decline in total engagement on Facebook that is in part attributable to the return of in-person programming at the library and a reduction in the number of prerecorded and live programs conducted virtually.

Communications continues to assist all Library departments and is working closely with Development on the upcoming Beyond Words event. We are also meeting regularly with our contracted public relations firm to discuss the Barbour Branch move to the Swift Factory and other Library initiatives that may garner regional or national attention.

Communications has also been building a relationship with the United Way of Central and Northeastern Connecticut and has been brought into planning meetings for the Hartford Campaign for Grade-Level Reading to coordinate efforts across organizations.

Compliance audit finds issues at DOC

Connecticut Department of Labor

Corrections department repeatedly failed to file reports, had 20 years of overtime, paid leave

By Rebecca Lurye

A year after the Connecticut Department of Labor (DOC) was named a defendant in a lawsuit alleging the state had failed to file reports and pay leave, the department still failed to provide comprehensive information about its compliance with laws.

The lawsuit, filed in October 2022 by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and other groups,指责DOC未能遵守联邦法律，未能及时报告员工的加班和病假情况。

The department had failed to file reports for all but three years from 2012 to 2021, the lawsuit said.

The audit found that the DOC had failed to file reports for the years 2017, 2018, and 2019, and had failed to pay leave for the years 2018 and 2019.

The report also found that the department had failed to comply with laws related to the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) and the Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA).

The department, in a statement, said it was “taking steps to improve” its compliance with laws.

The shooting occurred on Tuesday night at the intersection of New London Avenue and Park Street in Hartford.

The shooting resulted in the deaths of two people and injuries to four others.

West Hartford weighing changes to parking ban

Proposals include overnight permits, street exemptions

By Rebecca Lurye

West Hartford is considering lifting its parking ban on certain streets in the town center.

The ban, implemented during the COVID-19 pandemic, has been a major topic of debate in the town.

Some residents and business owners have called for the ban to be lifted or at least reduced, arguing that it has negatively impacted their ability to do business.

The town council is expected to vote on the issue later this month.

The mission, according to the Connecticut National Guard, is to provide medical care to U.S. military personnel and their families in Poland.

Cort Park ‘StoryWalk’ will promote English and Spanish literacy

The Cort Park StoryWalk is a new initiative aimed at promoting English and Spanish literacy.

Designed by the Connecticut Network for the Blind and Visually Impaired, the StoryWalk features a series of life-sized cardboard cutouts that tell the story of a young boy named Juan who learns about the importance of literacy.

The cutouts are placed around the park, allowing visitors to follow the story as they walk.

The initiative is being led by the Cort Park Library, which is working with local schools and community groups to promote the importance of literacy.

Strike averted at nursing home provider; more threats looming

A strike was averted at a nursing home provider in Connecticut.

Nursing home workers at the provider were set to go on strike on Monday, but the union and management reached a deal to avoid the strike.

The union, the Connecticut Health and Human Services Workers Union, said that it had reached an agreement with management to improve working conditions and wages.

The deal includes raises for nurses and improvements to their working conditions, according to the union.

The provider, which operates several nursing homes in Connecticut, said that it was committed to improving working conditions and wages for its employees.

The agreement is expected to be ratified by the union members.
