Hartford Public Library Releases Free Hartford Stage Tickets; City Residents and HPL Cardholders Eligible To Claim Seats

January 31, 2018 — Seats to the Hartford Stage presentation of “Agatha Christie’s Murder on the Orient Express” will be available Monday, February 5, to Hartford residents who are HPL cardholders in a new partnership.

The arrangement began with Sharon Washington’s show, “Feeding the Dragon,” about her childhood spent in a custodial apartment in the New York Public Library.

“Murder on the Orient Express” runs February 15 through March 18. Card-holding city residents are eligible to reserve two tickets during the run. Patrons can check on line for ticket availability starting February 5, but must ask for tickets in person at any of the seven Library locations. Once claimed, seats must be confirmed by calling the Hartford Stage at 860-527-5151. (Allow an hour after claiming for processing.)

The program will continue for the productions of “The Age of Innocence” and “Statements After an Arrest Under the Immorality Act.” Tickets for those productions will be available closer to the run of the shows.
